

Environmental Policy

Phelans Pharmacy is committed to reducing the environmental impact of our pharmacy and supporting a cleaner, healthier community.

As a local community pharmacy in Ireland, we recognise our responsibility to use resources responsibly, minimise waste and continually look for practical ways to improve our environmental performance.

Our Commitments

Reduce and recycle waste

We aim to minimise unnecessary waste, reduce paper use and recycle appropriate materials wherever practical. Pharmaceutical and healthcare waste is managed and disposed of safely and in accordance with applicable requirements.

Use resources responsibly

We take practical steps to reduce energy and water consumption, including switching off equipment and lighting when not required and using energy-efficient equipment where appropriate.

Responsible purchasing

Where practical, we consider environmental factors when purchasing products and services, including reducing unnecessary packaging and considering the durability and environmental impact of products.

Consider transport and deliveries

We seek to minimise the environmental impact of deliveries and travel by using efficient delivery arrangements and combining deliveries where practical.

Engage our team

We encourage our staff to reduce waste, recycle appropriately and identify opportunities to improve our environmental practices.

Continual improvement

We are committed to complying with relevant environmental and waste-management requirements in Ireland and will regularly review our practices to identify realistic opportunities for improvement.

Our Commitment to Our Community

We believe that small, consistent actions can make a meaningful difference. We will continue to look for practical ways to operate our pharmacy more sustainably while maintaining the high standards of care and service our patients expect.
